DETAILED ACTION

Continued Examination Under 37 CFR 1.114

A request for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, including the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e), was filed in this application after final rejection. Since this application is eligible for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, and the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e) has been timely paid, the finality of the previous Office action has been withdrawn pursuant to 37 CFR 1.114. Further, in regard to the preliminary amendment filed 24 April 2003, claims 1 and 4 are amended.

Drawings

The corrected or substitute drawings were received on 24 April 2003. These drawings are acceptable.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

Claims 1-2 and 4-5 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Kasuga (US 6,125,091). Kasuga discloses the claimed invention as follows:

Art Unit: 2828

Regarding claim 1, Kasuga discloses a laser diode chip for an optical pickup apparatus in which a plurality of light emitting portions 4,5 are formed on a substrate 3 for emitting laser beams L1,L2, each of said plurality of light emitting portions 4,5 is provided for reading information recorded on a recording medium 25 and the laser beams have different wavelengths so as to correspond to different types of recording medium, where respective light emitting points of said plurality of light emitting portions 4,5 are located in different positions in the emitting direction (see Fig. 1 and the discussion thereof).

Regarding claim 2, the respective light emitting points of said plurality of light emitting portions 4,5 are located in an order in which a short wavelength (650 nm) of each of the laser beams (L2) emitted from the light emitting points is forward in the emitting direction as compared to an emitting direction of a longer wavelength (780 nm) beam (L1).

Regarding claim 4, the limitations are disclosed as in the rejection of claim 1 above, and there is further an optical system for guiding the laser beams emitted from the light emitting device to a recording surface of said recording medium and guiding a laser beam reflected by the recording surface to a photosensing device 11.

Regarding claim 5, the limitations are disclosed as in the rejection of claim 2 above.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claim 3 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Kasuga in view of Tanaka (previously cited US 5,619,521). Kasuga discloses that the light emitting portions 4,5 are disposed on one surface of a substrate 3, but it is not disclosed that a common electrode is formed on the other surface of the substrate. It is well known that when a number of light emitting devices are formed on a single substrate, that a common electrode may be formed on the opposite side of the substrate. See for example Tanaka. It would have been obvious to one skilled in the art to form a common electrode on the opposing side of the substrate because then both light emitting devices may be powered by running a voltage through a single electrode, thus simplifying the design of the device, as is well known.

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments with respect to the claims have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.
